The rise in seasoned dividend paying stocks was in response to a demand insistent enough to suggest increased outside buying, although cavering of short commitments was a large factor.

Advices respecting monetary conditions abroad were more favorable and the casier tone of day to day accommandations in the home market assisted operations on the long side. Canadian Pacific, which was exceptionally weak yesterday, led the rise, and a large number of representative shares advanced in a striking fashion, The volume of business contracted at the higher quotations, traders reducing their operations disting fashion, The volume of business contracted at the higher quotations, traders reducing their operations after a partial runsin of the shorts had been accomplished.

Beinds were firm, Prospects of another favorable bank statement and the large over-subscription to the Lehigh Valley bond issues attimulated bullish activity agais Prices went well beyond the morning high figures, with particular streng in Oanadian Pacific, Union Pacific a and the conlers.

The market closed strong. The indicate of the shorts largely increased.
